COUNTY SEEKS PUBLIC INPUT WITH ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT SURVEY

DELAWARE, OH – What should be accomplished in the next decade to make Delaware County an even stronger community? County officials are now seeking your feedback with a public survey.

“Delaware County is a healthy and vibrant community that has been fueled by two decades of tremendous growth,” said Bob Lamb, Delaware County Economic Development Director. “To ensure we achieve economic prosperity in the next decade and beyond, we are creating a strategic economic development plan that outlines a vision, goals and objectives for the entire county. Public input is a critical piece of our planning process.”

The public survey is available online at: surveymonkey.com/r/DCEDAP. With just seven questions, the survey is designed to be completed in less than 10 minutes. Anyone who lives and works in Delaware County is invited to participate.

The survey will be open until June 1, 2016.

The County retained Montrose Group LLC to create its economic development plan. In addition to conducting the public survey, Montrose Group is facilitating a series of focus groups. Focus group participants are discussing top economic development priorities and essential resources to keep and attract residents. Five public sessions will be held in May; details about them will be announced soon.

The final economic development plan will be presented to county officials in December.
